Comments: To whom it may concern: I am not intimately familiar with the forested are that will be impacted by the proposed project. However, I am confident that what this region needs, what this continent needs, what this planet needs are more wild places, and pertinently, more forestland transitioned to old growth. Public lands like Telephone Gap are the places to let re-wilding happen. Nature will, given adequate time, apply suitable "management techniques", replacing weak individuals and species with those better suited for the climate of the future. Please do not log any of Telephone Gap and please limit management in the area to removing man-made obstacles to fish and other wildlife.
