Comments: This project is just another example of how little real forest science the forest service understands. This is an agency out of it's league lacking in professional expertise in forestry especially the importance of old growth

The forest service believes that clear cutting improves forests. When you clear cut you will end up with a forest of invasive species and undesirable species. Clear cutting is only useful when you have a forest of invasive species. For all the good the forest service does we would be way better off with no forest service

This proposed Green Mountain project is just another example of how the forest service does way more harm than good
