Comments: I am appalled at the use of old growth forest for timber. Especially old growth that is habitat to endangered species like the bat there. This is deplorable.

If you need to raise revenue, try clearing out small sections of newer growth lands in order to maximize, not minimize, soil health and biodiversity.

If I were President, the budget would be inscribed inside of soil health principals officially. At the moment we have not done that and so, on paper, ideas like this one appear sensible when they are reckless.
