Comments: In regards to adding a Enduro skills area and true beginning rider training area at Rampart Range.

First for the beginner training area, all 3 of my children learned to ride or developed their skills at Rampart on both bikes and atv's. Initially learning the basics in parking lots/ and large campsites then moving to the light foot loop at Dutch Fred and on to trails. It was very unnerving moving to the trails, hoping they could handle the terrain as well as the oncoming traffic (which they did both extremely well). Adding the beginner area would be huge for early riders to develop their skills before hitting the trails. I believe it would make it safer for them and other riders.

For the Enduro skills area, its pretty easy to find areas along existing trails where riders have gotten off the trail to make their own "enduro skills area". I would hope that giving riders this area would curb some of that activity and preserve the system that we have. Thanks
