Comments: My wife and I have greatly enjoyed the 2 experiences of visiting the White Mountains! We love the Bristle-cone Pines, their age and their stark beauty. We appreciate their scientific use to measure time. They are a world treasure! There is nothing like them elsewhere on this planet! So we urge you to be wise in your planning and re-planning so that these mountains and their awesome trees are preserved for the generations to come. They, of course, should be seen and enjoyed by all human beings, but the respect that they deserve should determine to what extent trails are multiplied around and among them.

Respectfully,

Herman C. Waetjen
