Comments: Proper forest management is needed all across Montana and the Western US, we need to put an end to a procedural loophole being abused by fringe groups in the courts that block important forest restoration work that is critical. We need to reverse the disastrous Cottonwood decision to increase active forest management while we still have logging and milling infrastructure in our state. We must manage our forest before they manage us and our way of life. Collaboration is key when we work together to design, develop and implement forest management projects we create healthier environments and healthier rural economies. Responsible, active forest management is crucial to the continued health of our forest systems, wildlife populations, and surrounding rural economies. As an active outdoorsman it is a shameful waste how the courts have treated our great natural renewable resources. Wildfires cost tax payer money, Timber Management generates money!!!
