Comments: Greens Creek used to be called Zinc Creek. It has been discharging lead and zinc into the inlet since long, long before any mining activity took place. There's an area nearby that we used to call the Big Sore, because nothing would grow there. This was also before the mining began.

This expansion will have minimal impact on Admiralty Island. The entire mining operation can be captured on a cell phone camera at only 4500SF elevation. This is NOT a significant impact.

Greens Creek mine is vital to our community as an employer and responsible corporate member of our community. Our local economy would suffer greatly if the mine were to close.

Please follow the actual science, not the rhetoric and allow this expansion to proceed.
