Comments: I am in full support of the Eastern White Pine removal project. This is such an attainable project that helps not only the critters that dwell in the forest but also the people that work & live there. Pine forest should be managed w/ regular thinning & clearcuts, not just plant and leave it standing. These become carbon sinks and do nothing for the wildlife, ecosystem, & or watershed. Having a these pines removed starts the cycle all over and we should be doing this on a larger scale in the proper areas. This is a great step forward to create some early successional Forest that occupies less than 1% of these National Forest.
