Comments: In today's world it takes a lot of natural resources such as minerals to keep the appetite of the global economy satisfied. I understand certain things are necessary for us human folk to be able to have the luxuries we have.

However, it deeply saddens me that our greatest resource, gift, and asset we have could so easily be manipulated, destroyed, and potentially ruined for generations to come and be able to enjoy.

This cannot be substituted.

This cannot be replaced.

Our economy may need these minerals but I assure you our local users of this beautiful, natural, and free asset do not.

Please don't take away this from my children and great grandchildren.

Humanity needs this as much as our planet does right now.

Perhaps we engage in stronger recycling methods Instead of continuing to destroy our planet for stronger profit margins.

Thank you for thinking about everyone else besides just you.

Sincerely,

Chris Kenzy
