Comments: The Black Hills are so much more than the minerals it's made up of. Besides those who know the Hills to be culturally and spiritually significant, it is a unique place that deserves to be preserved for future generations. My family has been rooted in the Black Hills since the 1880s - that is 5 generations of history. My wish is for 5 more generations to see this magnificent area just as I have, and those before me. But if we start extracting resources mindlessly, there won't be anything left within just a few years. Please keep the Black Hills thriving as it is meant to be.
