Comments: This area is a wildlife refuge and recreational area, beloved by those in the community, and the community thrives on tourism for these reasons. This is a main access point for several trails. If this area is forested, I hope it's done in a HIGHLY sustainable manner, paying particular attention to erosion and old growth retention. It greatly affects soil composition, biodiversity, animal migrations and reproduction, ground temperatures, and water quality downstream. Seems like a horrible idea in this valuable, well-preserved ecosystem.
