

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 6/9/2023 4:36:54 AM

First name: Anne

Last name: Cleary

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Mining destroys the land beautiful features and leaves behind by products that poison the land or air or water and it makes the people sick that live off the land. There are several treaties in place that give them indigenous people the right to the lands and to protect them and have the resources remain in the ground. Then indigenous peoples have this right and it's also protected by International laws. It would be nice if the beauty of the land remains pristine and intact. It endangers the indigenous Peoples Health when mining and drilling take place where the indigenous peoples live off the land or water.