Comments: As a proud member of the mining community my entire career, as well as a proud Sibanye Stillwater employee, I absolutely support this project. The lengths to which this company goes for its environmental objectives is quite commendable, and the permitting and design of this expansion is no exception. The fact that is has been designed to withstand such a large earthquake magnitude, above any historic flood rain content, and a panel of experts that review tailings impoundments and designs for a living is just further proof that this organization strives to go above and beyond in its endeavors. Then, to further add to the importance of the project, this company and its employees constitute a substantial percentage of the state's GDP. This project is a must!
