Comments: To Whom It May Concern,

In this case, as with others of similar problems, all of us are concerned. The use of this herbicide, after proof of it's danger and lingering effects, is unconscionable. We are supposed to be intelligent, capable people, who make "good" decisions. It seems, perhaps, we've ingested too much glyphosate and it has destroyed the brains of those in charge of so many vital decisions. Find another way. This indiscriminately kills, bees, butterflies, tiny beasts we care about and need. It's basically Round up. Like DDT of old, we are fighting to stop it's use. Lead the way. Don't use it.
