Comments: The proposed changes to the mountain to remove steep terrain fails to recognize the character of JHMR. The gentrification of the mountain is already causing an over use of the terrain. The terrain proposed for restructuring such as Alta Chutes are over skied at this time. With the new Sublette lift they will get even heavier usage. The Southern end of the mountain should be left as it is. The Northern end has already been reduced to corduroy skiing. Let Amphitheater to Gros Ventre be the dividing line between the natural terrain and the manicured terrain. Allow Mother Nature to reside as she can without cutting, blowing up and reconfiguring the terrain.

I do not support this plan nor the justification for this work.

Go back to the drawing board.
