

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/22/2023 8:59:07 PM

First name: Kathy

Last name: Groth

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The High Uintas Wilderness should be protected from domestic grazing of all kinds. Domestic grazers compete with native wildlife. The killing of native predators to protect domestic grazers destroys the natural ecosystem.

Public lands belong to the public, and they do not belong to those who use them for profit.

The tradition of eliminating natural wildlife and ecosystems for those who graze domestic animals for profit is old and out of date. There is no good reason to continue to despoil wilderness.