Comments: The High Uintas Wilderness should be protected from intrusion by the hand of man. Wilderness should exist un-developed and un-managed by human intervention. Since this wilderness is already spoiled by errant policies, I would support and recommend that human impact be reversed. One suggestion would be to remove domestic sheep and cattle grazing and permits in the wilderness and let this area return to its natural state. Native wildlife and plants should be allowed to re-establish itself naturally. The wilderness is not a garden for us to manage and cultivate.
