Comments: I support the "no grazing" alternative for the High Uintas Wilderness.

The status quo is not acceptable. It is past time to end the 10 domestic sheep allotments and return the land to the Wilderness it is supposed to be.

Domestic grazing brings with it a host of problems that are incompatible with Wilderness. For example:

1. Native wildlife recovery is threatened by disease, competition for resources, and execution.
2. Native predators such as black bears, mountain lions, and coyotes are executed.
3. Watersheds are degraded.
4. Visitor Wilderness experience is debased.
