

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/27/2023 8:27:12 PM

First name: Maggie

Last name: Frazier

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The FACT that domestic sheep do spread disease into Bighorn Sheep seems to escape the Forest Service's attention.

A 2020 scientific study shows that ecological damage in the High Uintas as a result of domestic sheep is severe, and vegetation productivity is even lower today than it was in the 1960s. Could it be that the Forest Service missed this?

Domestic sheep leasing needs to be prevented in the High Uintas Wilderness!