Comments: I underscore previous comments on stream degradation from clear cutting and prescribed burning; erosional issues from clear cutting; loss of species' habitat through cutting and burning; cultural resource impact particularly through foresting process (I have personally seen flagged areas for protection ignored); economic loss through recreational impact; and there is more.

To say these concerns are addressed within the scope of the project, I believe is disingenuous. It would appear that experts in various disciplines and stakeholders have been consulted but that the project has not been considerably modified to address these concerns.

The USFS in this area is a recreational leave no trace resource. To view it as a timber resource is antiquated. Forest management, as has been seen in the west, is fraught with undesired consequences.
