Comments: To those in charge of the Spruce Management project #61599

I am asking you to consider no cutting of the spruce habitats. As spruce trees thrive in damper, cooler climates, the damage from logging equipment is considerable to the soil. I am also concerned that we will lose important habitat diversity for native plants and wild life.

Creating an area to replant in pine does not seem responsible as the National Forest already has large areas being replanted slowly like the Jasper fire area.

Please consider conserving the spruce forests in your plan and choose the 'no logging option'.

Thank you
