Comments: I live five miles from Flanders Beach. Parts of the Forest Service proposal are a waste of money. Forget erosion control. Severe hurricanes occur here at least once every 15 years. Whatever rip rap you install or whatever erosion control you attempt eventually will be torn up by winds and waves. Sure, the cliffs are unstable, but so are the much higher cliffs along the western shore of Chesapeake Bay, and nobody is prevented from walking along the shoreline. I support replacing the amenities, but make sure you use cinder block and metal roofs, instead of shingles and wood for the out-buildings.
