Comments: I object to increase in prescribed burning. Dead trees should be manually removed and offered to the surrounding communities as firewood.

The so-called "climate change" being blamed for mortality of mature trees is an intentional and man-made event and destruction, not to be used as an excuse to devastate our remaining forests even further. By man-made I mean climate engineering we can thank for the long-term drought in the West and weather disasters elsewhere. You at the Forest Service know what I am referring to. Do not get on the bandwagon of this destruction of our forests by burning them. Cut out and remove dead wood and that will provide some protection to the remaining forests.

Learn to appreciate what life is left in them after the assaults by the criminal elements of our federal government, who want to devastate our nature, forests, our ability to rejuvenate ourselves in undisturbed Nature and our ability to survive.
