Comments: The East Crazy Inspiration Divide Land Exchange is the worst idea since allowing a handful of private landowners break the law by blocking access through prescriptive easements. The Forest Service allowed that to happen and I believe it is the general public that ultimately will get the shaft in this deal. This transaction should not take place as there is no way it is equitable in value. I just spoke to a landowner that borders forest service on the east side. He has to access his property through two of the large land owners. He even feels his access to his own property may be in danger. Please reconsider this land swap.
