Comments: It's not that the climbers are making routes. We need either a permit system to limit total number of climbers in the canyon during a given day/week. The hoards of climbers are straining all current infrastructure in the ten sleep area. AND we need a license with a conservation. Stamp. Climbers need to start supporting the conservation efforts financially for their sport. Hunters and fishers have to buy a license with a conservation stamp. oRV's are required to buy a permit to support its infrastructure. Why shouldn't climbers support the revenue of the forest service and state agencies? That is common sense.
