Comments: Good Morning--thanks for the opportunity to comment on the Crazy Mountain Land Exchange. I am not sure very many people are aware of this opportunity--a more diligent effort should have been attempted to allow all viewpoints to be easily expressed. That aside, I do not agree with the current proposal. It does not provide more or easier access. I am frankly weary with having to call ahead, search for contacts and being harassed to access my national forest. That is the area that needs to be prioritized. This plan was not a citizen initiated action, it was initiated by the Yellowstone Club among others. And It seems to prioritize their and the interests of large landowners and corporations over the owners of the national forest--all Americans. We have no concrete knowledge or guarantees of what will happen when this land is turned to private. Also, we are trading low lying, useful and accessible land for land that many of us are not able to access. It is not a good plan and begs more input and discussions. Let's not rush this important decision. Thanks.
