Comments: The Wilderness Act does not allow for manipulation of such forest by burning, selective or clear cutting. In fact, it specifically prohibits the Forest Service from this activity in all of the designated Wildernesses from its proposed burning plans for the Sequoia and Sierra National Forests. The following wilderness areas are cherished by the US people as well as people from around the globe:

the Ansel Adams, Dinkey Lakes, Dome Land, Golden Trout, Jennie Lakes, John Muir, Kaiser, Kiavah, Monarch, and South Sierra Wildernesses.

The Forest Service should follow should allow natural occurring lightning to caused fires to burn and create the wilderness of the future in these areas. This is why the Wilderness Act was established. The agency does not the legal means to proceed nor would it be beneficial to the forests to proceed.
