Comments: Please abandon this ridiculous idea of getting rid of fixed climbing anchors on federal land. They are not only important to climbers and our way of life, but search and rescue as well. Climbers are some of the most hardcore users of federal lands. We accomplish some really incredible and impressive things in these places. Fixed anchors are often an integral part of that. The majority of people go to parks and barely leave the road. We quite literally climb mountains. We should be the poster children of the NPS! You're treading on liberty here..... Leave our way of life alone!
