

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 11/23/2023 6:20:08 PM

First name: Brett

Last name: Humanic

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The climbing legacy built on and within the national parks and forests of America goes back decades and there's fundamentally no reason to change this. Climbers are by and large loving maintainers of public land, and fixed anchors cause extremely little amounts of damage to the beauty and integrity of the rock faces we all share and love. This proposal is a complete waste of funds, time & effort that could much better be used in other areas to maintain our public lands.