Comments: This proposal is clearly the work of woefully ill-informed individuals without any real experience in the climbing community, one of the most conservation minded sub-cultures in existence today. To put such a drastic, misguided law in place will have more negative impacts by removing safe climbing access to thousands of rock climbers. Effectively, you'll not only be destroying the sport of rock climbing, but also denying these lands support and protection from the thousands of rock climbers today who act as self-imposed stewards of nature and its preservation. This proposal is wrong on so many levels and will have countless adverse effects if allowed to pass.
