In regard to the proposed Tensleep Climbing Plan, I would like to see a user fee or user permit fee in place. Other recreational activities require permits or user fees. With all of the proposed management (4 vaulted toilets, trail maintenance, kiosks and signage, etc), where are the funds for such things coming from? I propose seasonal usage of climbing areas as well, particularly in the spring, when snow is still on the ground or is melting and there is mud everywhere (this is seen up in the High Park area in particular).

It has been difficult watching the canyon and High Park area become trashed with the high volume usage almost year round, places I've grown up using the past 40 years. Maybe at least some sort of permit fee or user fee would help offset the costs in road maintenance, trail maintenance, toilet maintenance, and the list goes on.
