

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 11/25/2023 2:17:23 PM

First name: Chase

Last name: Brendle

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The majority of rock climbers are nature conservationists. Limiting our climbing protection and use decisions to be made by people who are not actively using the areas for climbing personally is not only dangerous and creates additional risk and potential as climbers will be forced to access these areas using new methods, gear, or trails. Trust us to manage ourselves. We have done it effectively for over 60 years. Penalize bad actors and restrict specific tourism areas as needed. Don't create safety concerns by allowing for government to decide what citizens deem to be necessary for safety.