Comments: I oppose all increases in outfitter/guide permits in the national forest. In an age of increasingly limited public access, our national forests are already overrun with public (non-commercial) sportsmen and women. Increasing commercial hunting in the national forest will only exacerbate this considerable problem. As recent trends demonstrate, (once accessible) private lands are widely utilized for outfitting. As such, there is simply no justifiable reason to continue permitting outfitting and guiding on public lands that are already disproportionately utilized by the public. For this reason, I strongly encourage you to forgo any increases to outfitter/guide permits.
