Comments: My home borders National Forest and the sub-division where I live is virtually surrounded by National Forest. During the warmer months of the year there is a good bit of dispersed camping in the area and also a good bit of target shooting. It's a little unsettling to hear 10 to 15 rounds fired off less than a half mile from my porch. Live stock and pets flip out and my neighbor has had his house and stock trailer hit by stray rounds. The population in and around Forests is increasing every year with many more year-round residents so the days of the wild west are going to have to be limited a bit.
