Comments: Climbing in the Black Hills region of the country has been an annual tradition for myself and climbing friends. The access, route development and local community has been a big draw for us. We love the area and look forward to the full immersion into nature that the region gives. I wholeheartedly endorse the efforts of the Access Fund and the Black Hills Climbers Coalition in preserving climbing access and advocating for responsible bolt placement. Their dedication to maintaining climbing access and environmental conservation is crucial, and I stand behind their initiatives.
