Comments: No human activity has a more negative environmental, aesthetic, and/or sensory impact on the nearby surrounding natural and human settings than firing any firearm, especially a high caliber, large animal killing rifle. All shooting ranges should be underground and their presence undetectable from any nearby, above ground natural or man-made community. Any above ground gun ranges should be as far away from wilderness areas, dwellings, roads, and campsites as possible and have reasonable, posted and enforced hours of operations. Rapid fire automatic or nonautomatic weaponry should be banned and time limits placed on each individual's use of the facility. The use of these above ground shooting ranges by private or commercially motivated individuals or organizations to display, demonstrate, and/or sell any kind of firearm should be prohibited.
