Comments: With the increase in gun ownership, it will be important to manage recreational shooting on public lands. Recreational shooting is not a 2nd Amendment right, it is a privilege and a responsibility. Its effects of noise, safety and environmental impact reach beyond the immediate area of activity and affect others living and recreating in the area. Sadly, my personal experience recreating on public lands has shown a low degree of responsibility demonstrated by many recreational shooters, with damages, litter, human waste and shell casings left behind. The unseen effects include the unintended consumption of lead by birds and wildlife and the sensitivity and fear in wildlife and pets that are exposed to the noise. I support a management plan that will provide responsible limits to recreational shooting, ensuring that everyone can have a safe and enjoyable experience on public lands.
