Comments: To Whom It May Concern,

I have been an avid climber for the last 14 years. Please consider the below:

Restricting the establishment of new routes to "existing climbing opportunities" on non-Wilderness lands is unenforceable and will create confusion amongst land managers and climbers. Non-Wilderness climbing management policy should maintain opportunities for new anchors unless and until analyses determine climbing should be restricted to protect cultural and natural resources.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Madeleine Docherty
