

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 12/23/2023 3:53:55 PM

First name: Mike

Last name: McMayon

Organization:

Title:

Comments: These Elk herds are conditioned over generations to migrate to these feed grounds. From what I've seen over the last 30 years by states out west to stop or slow the spread of CED, wiping out local herds of deer or elk has minimal effect on stopping CWD. And decimating these herds is the likely outcome of cutting off the feed for the elk, especially in a winter like this past one. At a minimum, they'll move onto local ranches looking for feed or hay. How much will that cost the state in reimbursements? Our big game herds are in enough trouble in almost every Rocky Mountain state already. I believe the feeding programs should be expanded