Comments: The responsible use for fixed anchors in Wilderness areas is a tool that allows American climbers to better connect with the land, national history and enjoy public land in a safe responsible and ethical manner. Not only do fixed anchors keep climbers safe, they allow current day climbers to visit historic American achievements of the past and provide generations of climbers with andl opportunity for a priceless experience on Americas public lands . Climbers engage with local communities and become invested in maintaining and preservating the natural places they visit.
