

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/4/2024 6:57:07 PM

First name: Aaron

Last name: Swank

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Limiting new climbing routes to 'existing opportunities' on non-wilderness lands is impractical and risks confusion among land managers and climbers. A sound non-wilderness climbing policy should allow new anchors until analyses determine restrictions necessary for cultural and natural resource protection. This ensures a balanced approach, considering environmental impact while preserving the freedom for responsible exploration.