

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/5/2024 6:20:03 PM

First name: Anon

Last name: Anon

Organization:

Title:

Comments: This is unnecessary. The climbing community in Tucson works hard to promote good outdoor stewardship and appreciation for the land, and this has not been a problem for decades. Climbing access helps keep trails maintained and crags clean. The National Park Service should work with our local climbing organizations to find ways to further maintain these spaces, not make blanket regulations that completely restrict this historied sport and endanger climbers because of limitations on bolt placement.