Comments: I'm leaving a comment because I want stronger environmental protection to go into action, and that includes going hard on protecting forests both younger and older, dense and spread out, all across the nation. The worsening wildfires in California and record temperatures all last year for example should serve as frank and urgent alarm bells to get right on such legislation. Things like strengthening firefighter departments, spacing out tree-planting (physically), slamming the ban-hammer down on logging and drilling, and not putting a single red cent into fossil fuels. We're all on a clear time limit for this, and that means you too, Mr. President. So if you want the public on your side, get on it.
