Comments: From my experience, in areas like Joshua Tree and Yosemite National Park the bolting has been kept at a minimum. If anything, there should be more rappel-based bolting in areas like Joshua Tree where a descent causes more damage the the ecosystem than a few bolts.

Please put in place a climbing management plan for bolting. I do not want anyone to feel empowered to bolt. Having qualified climbing community members (Climbing Nonprofits) should be involved in any bolting removal/additions.

Per wilderness areas, if bolting is allowed then the bolts must be hand drilled.
