Comments: Reading the proposal it sounds like you are planning on banning climbing anchors until feasibility studies and management plans are complete. That seems quite prohibitive considering the limited resources of the USFS and the vast amounts of wilderness. I think it would be a very bad idea for all rappel anchors that we rely on for safe descent to be banned from alpine routes unless specifically authorized by a local manager. I think it should be the other way -- allowed unless a local management plan is already in place. It seems you are putting the cart before the horse.
