Comments: The proposed rules for rock climbing that pertain to pitons, bolts, and slings are unnecessary and overly restrictive. Climbers are in general, avid wilderness advocates and don't need a bunch of ignorant bureaucrats making uninformed decisions on protection measures they'd changes to managing climbing in and around Wilderness areas. nothing about.

Quit over-regulating conscientious backcountry users and focus on poachers and illegal pot growing and human/drug smuggling operations with your limited enforcement budget and staff.

Geez!
