

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/15/2024 8:29:04 PM

First name: Alan

Last name: Yamamoto

Organization:

Title:

Comments: As the directive states, climbing is a way many people enjoy the wilderness. Adding a barrier of bureaucracy to fixed hardware maintenance by requiring explicit permission will make climbing less safe, not more safe. Maintained hardware is crucial for climbers and non climbers alike. Unsafe equipment that causes injury can have a significant environmental impact as well due to emergency rescue, rock failure, and excessive erosion from poorly placed equipment.