Comments: I have been climbing for years. Climbing outside has given me a greater respect and appreciation for nature and the environment I am visiting while doing the activity. Every climber I've met has a huge respect for the environment and practices good stewardship while in nature. Removing fixed anchors will make climbing more dangerous and will take away a huge way we enjoy nature. I believe that if you summit a mountain on a given day you have conquered nothing. The mountain has simply let you in for a short period of time. This is a very intimate feeling. I haven't experienced nature to this extent with any other activity outdoors. Please don't take that away from us.

Sincerely, tax paying citizen
