

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/18/2024 2:26:28 PM

First name: Nicholas

Last name: Hynes

Organization:

Title:

Comments:

Comments: I have been climbing for many years and have traveled just for climbing multiple times and I am big on protecting the environment but banning bolts and anchors will not help the environment. They pose not threat to the environment and should not be banned. These routes are some of the most famous in the world and to ban them you would lose support from a big part of the out door community. These routes keep people outdoors and adventurous and you would be taking away that doorway from people. There are no significance to banning bolts other then to ban and stop climbers.