Comments: I support the proposed regulation.

I saw this in the technical report:

"Finally, it should be recognized that many of the old-growth forests of today developed under different climate and disturbance regimes. Executive Order 14072 calls for the Forest Service and BLM to recruit, sustain, and restore old-growth and mature forests, albeit more adapted to 21st century conditions."

If we lose our old-growth forests to fire or logging, what replaces them will be far different and worse than what we have now. The climate has changed and so should our approach to managing public lands. The proposed policy & study is a good place to start.
